Develop quicker, scale faster.

Our OutSystems Innovation as a Service model solves talent-shortage pains by providing a range of options to help deliver digital transformation.

Our Innovation as a Service commercial model is comprised of three service offerings:

Staff Augmentation
Providing skilled resources to work with your current teams under your management and following your standards.

Project Work
Providing an agile team to deliver a project defined by you, under ISB's supervision, with regular reporting into your program management.

Code Acceleration
Following either of the above service offerings, this could then include ISB's current products, features and patterns into your own applications.

Following our project methodology we would translate business user stories into Jira, where they are appropriately discovered and scored, with the velocity then tracked on a scrum or Kanban basis. As a minimum for any project we include; an Engagement Manager, Scrum Master, Tech Lead, Developers and QA Resources.

Our model is made for our customers. It is more flexible and can scale faster and more efficiently than traditional outsourced models. That means that new functions, new projects, or concepts can be launched and completed quicker to the highest standards, The program focuses on reducing risk and cost.
